Two Cars. Same Make & Model.
Same Color, Equipment and Mileage.

Yet One is Worth $1150.00 More. Why?

Condition. Dealers know this is one of the most important factors in determining the value of a used car.

Since Black Book began reporting actual dealer auction selling prices more than 45 years ago, their guide books have always provided values for different condition classifications. Just knowing what a car of certain year, make and model sold at auction for isn't enough information in today's market.

Black Book representatives attend major dealer auctions coast to coast, every week. They look at each vehicle, record the mileage and equipment and then classify the vehicle according to condition. General appearance, paint, body, tire and interior conditions are recorded along with the actual selling prices. All this information is then computer tabulated and published in weekly and monthly market guides.

Black Book goes to such extremes for one reason... to always provide the most accurate, up to the minute vehicle market guides available anywhere.

Ten ways to ruin your car's resale value

Are you doing everything you can to maintain your vehicle's resale value?

March 6, 2006: 10:51 AM EST

NEW YORK (CNNMoney.com) - Any car loses value over time. How much it loses is, to some extent, up to you.

There are lots of things people commonly do, or don't do, that can pound down a car's eventual resale value much faster than the simple passage of time and ordinary wear.

If want to keep your car's resale value as high as possible, perhaps you shouldn't get that monster stereo system installation or munch on that burger with fried onions while you're in the driver's seat.

Kelley Blue Book, known as a resource for used car values, offered this list of things drivers often do that damage their cars' value.

TOSS MAINTENANCE RECORDS

It's easy to scrap that oil change receipt or forget to have your dealership initial your service manual for the 50,000 mile check up. But the best way to ensure a buyer that your vehicle was properly maintained and cared for is through documentation. Taking care of your car's engine is great. But without proof, all that work won't be worth much at trade-in time.

PICK A WILD COLOR

That metallic purple paint job may seem attractive on the sales lot, but many times car owners find it harder to sell those exotic-colored cars later on. Instead consider a more popular color such as black, silver or white, recommends KBB.

GET UNPOPULAR OPTIONS

Picking out options on your new car that suit you may seem like a no-brainer, but be sure to include equipment that other buyers will want such as anti-lock brakes (ABS), alloy wheels, a CD player or leather-upholstered seats.

EAT AND GO

It may be unavoidable at times, but eating in your seat is a fast track to damaging the interior of your car. If possible, consider the mess potential of any foods you might eat in the car.

PERSONALIZE PERMANENTLY

KBB also recommends passing on the vehicle personalizations for your new car or at least keeping them to a minimum. Who's going to want to buy a car with your nickname emblazoned on the trunk lid?

LET THE INTERIOR GO

Neglecting your vehicle's interior is one way drivers can ruin their car's resale value. Instead make sure the upholstery and mats in your car are in good shape.

PUMP UP THE VOLUME

Your driving experience may not be the same without that extra subwoofer or those upgraded speakers, but replacing the factory stereo, especially if it means carving away parts of your car, may jeopardize your vehicle's resale value.

MIX-AND-MATCH TIRES

Buying mismatched tires and forgetting to have them checked and rotated regularly is another trap many car owners fall into. Buy a complete set of the same brand for both safety and to maintain your car's resale value, KBB suggests.

IGNORE THOSE DOOR DINGS

That scratch or ding may not look like much from the outside, but they could have a lasting impact on your car's value if not fixed in a timely fashion. Often those blemishes are the first step toward rust and could result in expensive damage to your car over time.

CHOOSE POORLY FROM THE START

It's tempting to pick the car that grabs your eye at the dealership, but make sure you pick a vehicle that has a good projected resale value. KBB says if you do your research ahead of time, it could save you money down the road.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Clean Air Markets - Environmental Issues

The Effects of Acid Rain on Automotive Coatings

Over the past two decades, there have been numerous reports of damage to automotive paints and other coatings. The reported damage typically occurs on horizontal surfaces and appears as irregularly shaped, permanently etched areas. The damage can best be detected under fluorescent lamps, can be most easily observed on dark colored vehicles, and appears to occur after evaporation of a moisture droplet. In addition, some evidence suggests damage occurs most frequently on freshly painted vehicles. Usually the damage is permanent; once it has occurred, the only solution is to repaint.

The general consensus within the auto industry is that the damage is caused by some form of environmental fallout. "Environmental fallout," a term widely used in the auto and coatings industries, refers to damage caused by air pollution (e.g., acid rain), decaying insects, bird droppings, pollen, and tree sap. The results of laboratory experiments and at least one field study have demonstrated that acid rain can scar automotive coatings. Furthermore, chemical analysis of the damaged areas of some exposed test panels showed elevated levels of sulfate, implicating acid rain.

The popular term "acid rain" refers to both wet and dry deposition of acidic pollutants that may damage material surfaces, including auto finishes. These pollutants, which are released when coal and other fossil fuels are burned, react with water vapor and oxidants in the atmosphere and are chemically transformed into sulfuric and nitric acids. The acidic compounds then may fall to earth as rain, snow, fog, or may join dry particles and fall as dry deposition. Automotive coatings may be damaged by all forms of acid rain, including dry deposition, especially when dry acidic deposition is mixed with dew or rain. However, it has been difficult to quantify the specific contribution of acid rain to paint finish damage relative to damage caused by other forms of environmental fallout, by the improper application of paint or by deficient paint formulations. According to coating experts, trained specialists can differentiate between the various forms of damage, but the best way of determining the cause of chemically induced damage is to conduct a detailed, chemical analysis of the damaged area.

Because evaporation of acidic moisture appears to be a key element in the damage, any steps taken to eliminate its occurrence on freshly painted vehicles may alleviate the problem. The steps include frequent washing followed by hand drying, covering the vehicle during precipitation events, and use of one of the protective coatings currently on the market that claim to protect the original finish. (However, data on the performance of these coatings are not yet sufficient.)

The auto and coatings industries are fully aware of the potential damage and are actively pursuing the development of coatings that are more resistant to environmental fallout, including acid rain. The problem is not a universal one-- it does not affect all coatings or all vehicles even in geographic areas known to be subject to acid rain-- which suggests that technology exists to protect against this damage. Until that technology is implemented to protect all vehicles or until acid deposition is adequately reduced, frequent washing and drying and covering the vehicle appear to be the best methods for consumers who wish to minimize acid rain damage.

RADAR DETECTORS

Undetectable Radar & Laser Detector

Custom Installation

The ARL360
Remote Control

Thanks to K40, it's possible for you to design your radar and laser protection system with the same care and detail that you invest in your high performance automobile. In fact, your professional K40 dealer can design a system specific to your automobile and appropriate for your method and pace of driving.

Choose your interior warning display with custom LED's and audio speakers or our new Warning Pod technology. Select a system with a single front mounted radar receiver, or upgrade to have dual detectors positioned in both the front and rear of the vehicle, to pinpoint the source of police signals from any direction. You can even incorporate our advanced Laser DefuserPlus system for the ultimate in laser protection. So no matter where you drive, you can feel confident, knowing you won't have to take your eyes from the road, your hands from the wheel or your wallet from your pocket.

No wires, no cords, no clips, no tickets. Guaranteed.

If you've owned a regular radar detector, you know the hassles of setting it up and hiding it from thieves when not in use. You hate the dangling cords, suction cups and Velcro tabs that destroy the elegant contours of your instrument panel.

K40's exclusive "Divide-and-conquer" concept solves all that. Inside the cockpit, separate alert lights and speakers or custom Warning Pod mounts invisibly into your vehicle's instrument cluster. A unique two piece control switch, installed discreetly under the kick panel or in the dash, adjusts the on/of, city/highway, and volume functions.

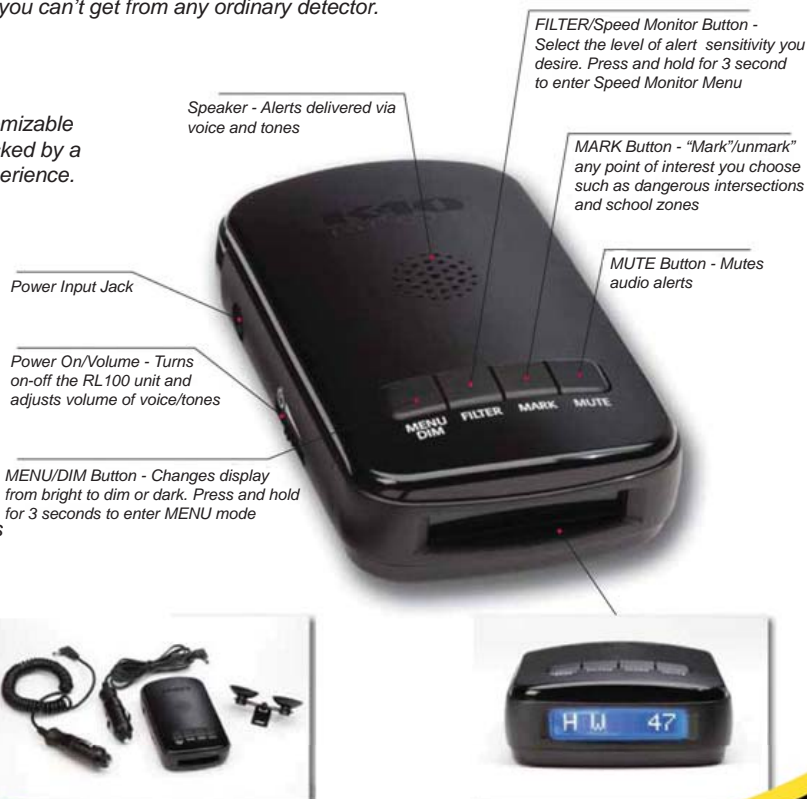

Outside, the K40 patented Dual Undetectable System features two individual receivers positioned behind the front grill and rear bumper, strategically located where they can capture radar signals fast, without obstruction. A separate and distinct audible and visual alert tells you exactly when and where to look for police radar.

That's an edge of confidence you can't get from any ordinary detector.

K40 Portable Radar Detector

The K40 ARL100 offers the ultimate portable protection, fully customizable for the way you drive. A radar and laser detector you can trust, backed by a company of real people who genuinely care about your driving experience.

- 12 Customizable Settings No two drivers, vehicles, or driving environments are the same. The K40 ARL100 is completely customizable to the way you drive.
- GPS based "Mark to Alert" Allows you to mark any point of interest you choose such as dangerous intersections and school zones. Build your own personal database.
- K40 Speed Monitor GPS feature cues visual and audio alerts whenever your pre-selected speed is exceeded.
- Voice or Tone plus LCD Display Unique audible and visual warnings let you know specifically which police radar/laser band is targeting your vehicle.
- Fully Programmable Radar/Laser Alert Options Enables you to eliminate alerts to specific radar/laser bands.
- Auto Start-Up and Autofrequency Calibration Automatic self-test sequence verifies the unit is operating properly and is calibrated each time it is turned on.

Drop-In Bedliners

Drop-in bedliners are the bedliner for complete truckbed protection, great factory appearance and lasting truck value. Available in over-rail and under-rail styles, drop-in bedliners are custom designed to fit the contours of practically every make and model of domestic and import pickup. Installation is quick and easy, and our new patented fastening clips (for over-rail liners) are designed with built-in release for quick removal, if necessary. Contoured side walls provide even distribution and minimize material expansion in all weather conditions. Extra-wide rails (over-rail models) offer extra protection for side loading. Every drop-in bedliner comes complete with a full-piece tailgate protector for complete protection. Most install with no drilling by using manufacturer prefabricated attachment points. Add it all up and you've got guaranteed truckbed protection that makes you look good.

Unique free-flow floor design provides easy cleaning and prevents water retention.

Over-rail liners feature an extra-wide lip to protect your truck's side rails

Under-rail drop-in bedliners are ideal with Aerocovers, bed covers, truck caps, side rails, etc.

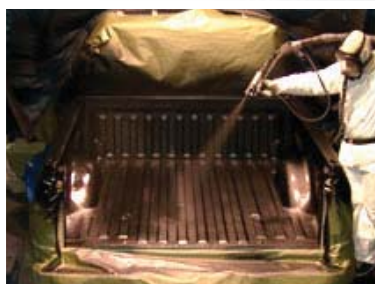

Spray-In Bedliners

Doesn't your investment deserve protection?

Not only does the spray-in bedliner look great on your truck, it also provides a protective barrier that prevents rust, dents, scratches, and chemical corrosion from what you haul, so your truck will have an extended service life and increased re-sale value.

Sprayed on bedliners are for the customer who wants superior surface protection with a factory-like fit and finish.

Trailer Hitches

Select a trailer hitch to fit your vehicle and your towing needs. Trailer hitches come in class 2, 3 and class 5 ratings. Not all classes are available for all vehicles but the higher the rating the more you can tow. Just remember not to exceed your vehicles capabilities. Class 2 trailer hitches have a 1 1/4" receiver hitch opening while all other have a 2" receiver hitch opening.

Hitch Pins & Clips

Taillight Convertors

Hitch Balls

Select a hitchball size that matches the size of the coupler on your trailer. Match the hole size of your hitch mount to the shank diameter of your hitch mount to the shank diameter of your hitch ball. If you tow a variety of trailers we recommend the switch ball system. this allows you to attach one shank to your hitch mount with the ability to change ball sizes quickly and easy.
